TEN CENTS

Job Corps Centers Viewed

By STEVEN GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate opened its Democrats vs. Republicans Job Corps today over President Nixon's order to close 59 Job Corps centers.

At issue is a "sense of the Senate" resolution criticizing the closing which asks the President to delay his order pending congressional action. Democrats on the Labor and Public Welfare Committee rammed the resolution out onto the Senate floor with a party-line vote.

The Senate took up the resolution in a debate expected to last two days.

Fearing embarrassment for the administration—Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt.—have drafted a substitute resolution. The substitute says it is the sense of the Senate there be no net reduction in manpower training opportunities until those presently enrolled in the camps scheduled for closing are given other opportunities for training.

This, to Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., is not satisfactory. Cranston is the author of the original Democratic resolution, and as chairman of the manpower and poverty subcommittee, will handle the measure on the floor.

Democrats also contend the Javits-Prouty resolution is redundant. They said Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz has already promised to find other training opportunities for the youths displaced by the closing.

Republicans contend the Job Corps camps—a keystone of President Johnson's war on poverty—are too costly, for what they accomplish; that the dropout rate is too high; and that training frequently does not fit the graduates for the employment.

Republicans also were reported ready to spring an amendment that aligned immorality at Job Corps camps. Reports have already been leaked about rape, homosexuality and drug abuse at a number of camps.

Operation of the camps cost more than $200 million for 1968, the last full year of operation, for which figures are available.

The long Apollo 10 countdown begins tonight for the launch of three astronauts Sunday on the final trial run for the manned landing on the moon.

Thomas P. Stafford, John W. Young and Eugene A. Cernan will orbit the moon for 3½ days next week to check the landing machinery, perfect moon maneuvering techniques and inspect the site Apollo 11 is to visit July 20.

Distraught Deputy Constable Shoots Wife And Policeman

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A distraught deputy constable who believed police were persecuting him because he is a Jew, kidnapped a policeman at gunpoint, shot him in the face and later wounded his estranged wife Sunday.

Eugene Cohen, 31, was overpowered by a brother-in-law as he was kidnapping his wounded policeman's revolver at approaching police. He was held in $50,000 bail pending a hearing Tuesday morning.

Cohen's wife, Delores, 22, was in guarded condition at Northeastern Hospital following emergency surgery for the removal of a bullet from her stomach.

Patrolman Lewis Frangipanni, 33, was admitted to Philadelphia General Hospital with a gunshot wound of the face, a broken nose, broken jaw and two missing teeth. He was listed in good condition.

Police said Frangipanni was driving a pink automobile off the Delaware Expressway when he saw Cohen with a German shepherd dog at the side of the highway. He offered Cohen a lift and the man pulled out a 22-caliber Derringer and ordered him to drive to the home of Cohen's estranged wife more than three miles away.

Frangipanni said he drove with Cohen slitting beside him, pointing the patrolman's own revolver at his temple and the big dog in the back seat. During the ride, Frangipanni said Cohen, who was wearing a shirt cinched at his knuckles, knocked off his hat, hit him in the face with the Derringer and fired a shot across his face and out the window.

On reaching Mrs. Cohen's home, Cohen got out of the car and pointed a gun at the policeman in the right nostril and ripped into his jaw.

Cohen then threatened to kill his wife and her brother, Glen, if the policeman didn't jump out of the car. Mrs. Cohen was shot, Whalen said, as police approached.

2,500 KILLED

COMMENT

Nobody's Business

Idaho State Journal

Next Year's Decennial head count is developing a peppery controversy. Existing law provides penalties of a $100 fine — 60 days imprisonment, or both, for refusing to answer a census question. For falsifying an answer the penalty options are a $500 fine, 1-year imprisonment, or both. These penalties, and the census group rounds in general, under sharp attack, quite rightly, we believe.

The American census was the first periodical enumeration of a people ever written into a national constitution. Its original purpose was to provide a basis for the reapportionment of seats in the House of Representatives according to the number of inhabitants found in each state.

After nearly two centuries the first national count was made in 1790 — the census has come to provide a continuing flow of statistical information. The data are invaluable to industry, political and social science, demography, and trend-watching in general. In addition millions of dollars annually are distributed by states to cities on the basis of size, and here the decennial census is the arbiter. States receive federal aid on the same basis.

Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stan on April 17 sent to members of Congress revisions of census questions that had been criticized on the Hill as too personal. Typical was the question on bathroom facilities which had aroused the ire of, among others, Rep. Jackson E. Bette (R-OH). The original question was: "Do you have a bathtub or shower?" A multiple choice of answers was furnished: "Yes, but for this household only; Yes, but shared with another household; No bathtub or shower."

At any rate, the Census Bureau says that questionnaires are now being printed. About 80 per cent of that nation's households will receive short, 22-question form. Two longer questionnaires will be submitted respectively, 15 per cent and 5 per cent of the nation's households.

The Bureau expects to come up next year with a total of about 207 million Americans, hopefully including the more than 5 million possibly overlooked in the 1960 census. Who uses their bathroom should remain their own business.

Rep. Charles A. Wilson (D-Calif.), chairman of a Post Office subcommittee on the census, on April 21 said, "Secretary Stan's changes are a good beginning, but in my opinion there is still a great deal of room for improvement." Wilson plans hearings around the country. A subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee also is opening hearings.

Chairman Herman E. Talmadge (D-Ga.) wants to see if the census questionnaires constitute "intrusion into the private affairs of our citizens."

The senate passed by voice vote last Oct. 4 a bill that would have retained the existing fines for failure to answer census questions but would have wiped out jail sentences.

Rep. Bets is sponsor of several bills that would remove the legal requirement that citizens must answer all census questions. The basic Bets bill now has 135 co-sponsors.

Castle Peak

The Post-Register

The Castle Peak mining venture in Central Idaho of the American Smelting and Mining Co. cannot be considered in the context of a standard mining claim in a standard forest area.

The White Cloud mountain area is simply not a standard area. It is one of Idaho's unique wilderness treasures — which should not be lost for all time, as a pack-in or walk-in area, because of the company's projected road and mining operation in the heart of this lake-laden high country.

But some are trying to give this mining project a "business as usual" image — which it decidedly does not have.

What's wrong with a road and a mining operation in the White Clouds? R. J. Bruning, editor of the North Idaho Press in Wallace, asks.

Mr. Bruning speaks from a setting which cared little about environmental balance in the course of its history ... and the area shows it. Not that mining is not important to Idaho, mind you, because it is. But Mr. Bruning makes the mistake again of equating the White Clouds with any mining venture anywhere.

The trouble, Mr. Bruning, with a road into the heart of the White Clouds — which is not a large area — is that there are thousands of public roads in the forest but there are precious few areas like the White Clouds. As a matter of fact the current push by the lumbering industry is probably going to see a great many more roads opened up. If Mr. Bruning will sit down now and examine the roads into the national forests and on Bureau of Land Management land over the state, he cannot claim that the White Clouds is not served more than adequately in their quest for the forested back country.

But Mr. Bruning misses the big point — and that is the vital importance of preserving those fast-disappearing wilderness-type areas which, although small percentage-wise as compared against the road-served forested areas, is uniquely endowed for preservation.

This does not mean that the White Clouds are not or will not be used. And the Forest Service reported recently that it is considering controls on the time allowed for horses to be in the area because of the fragile ecology of the area as against the heavy use some areas are receiving. It will always be used by the hunters and fishermen, the stone hunters, the photography experts, the hikers who pack in or walk in ... and increasingly, Put but a road into the area and an open pit mining operation (which we presume it will be), and something has been irretrievably lost.

Mr. Bruning should ask Idahoans — or those outside of Idaho who have visited it — what sort of value they place on the existing primitive area in Idaho. What would happen by now to this spectacular country if the Forest Service was not wise enough to preserve it some 50 years ago. And can Mr. Bruning say that the Middle Fork of the Salmon River or the Salmon river country itself is not used? We would refer him to Forest Service Statistics on last summer's number of boats and people who fished, hunted, boated, and hiked in this area.

The Forest Service gave its own cut on the importance of the preservation factor of this area for recreation, when the regional office recently stated:

"...Challis National Forest Management plans developed prior to the recent mining exploration in the area do not call for development of roads. Under these plans, management emphasis is being given to the area's exceptionally high recreation values."

The Forest Service has kept the area roadless precisely for this purpose.

It should also be pointed out that the taxpayers are paying a big bill for the American Smelting and Mining Co. to irretrievably alter this area. The federal government pays 50 per cent of the mining exploration cost and 50 per cent of the road cost under its minerals incentive program. Fine. We should have a minerals incentive program. But don't let us have the tunnel vision of equating all areas with such mineral areas as the White Clouds?

What is particularly questionable is indication by the mining company that it really is still exploring the value of the molybdenum in its White Cloud claim — and is having the taxpayers foot half of the bill to find out. The tragedy is that this "business as usual" attitude is being deployed in an area which we are equating Idahoan and the rest of the nation, once familiar with its offering, would want proscribed.

And keep in mind, this country is exporting 25 per cent of its molybdenum production.

We hope Idahoans familiarize themselves with the issues involved in the Castle Peak mining venture. We are sure, then, that they will ask the Forest Service to apply extraordinary authority to stop it.

This does not mean that the White Clouds are not or will not be used. And the Forest Service reported recently that it is considering controls on the time allowed for horses to be in the area because of the fragile ecology of the area as against the heavy use some areas are receiving. It will always be used by the hunters and fishermen, the stone hunters, the photography

Republicans: Mayor Lindsay Is In Dutch

NEW YORK — As Mayor John V. Lindsay began a walking tour in his old Manhattan Congressional district last week, a well-dressed matron broke through a phalanx of Negro boys trailing the Mayor to ask him a question.

"Do you know what's going on down there?" she asked, pointing to a Negro administration vest-pocket park on the edge of the Murray Hill district. "There's drugs and sex and who knows what else."

"Yes, I know," Lindsay replied softly and moved on.

"You ber' her' know," the woman shouted after him, "but you don't do a damn thing about it!" Later she described herself to us as a registered Republican who had worked for Lindsay since his first Congressional campaign in 1958 but now would work against him for renomination in the June 16 primary.

Such ideological alienation represents one level of Lindsay's difficulty within his own party.

The other is at the clubhouse level, where supporters of the New York Republicans organization have defected from Lindsay in alarming numbers.

Bronoklyn, for example, has become an organizational disaster area for the Mayor. Despite county leader John Crew's support for Lindsay, most of Brooklyn's Republican officeholders (including Angelo Arcuato, city councilman, and three of the four most powerful district leaders (including Ed Scarry, leader of the heavily Republican Bay Ridge area) are opposing Lindsay.

This alienation by rank-and-file Republican voters is reflected by the regular mean of most of the city's 300,000 regular Republicans probably would vote against Lindsay if they actually got to the polls. Nevertheless, Lindsay is likely to win the nomination because he is apt to be more skillful than his foes in actually getting out his own vote — and because his primary opposition is split between two opponents.

That Lindsay should be on the brink of destruction by New York Republicans can be explained partially in terms of Lindsay's broader predicament.

While championing the young and the black, he has undeservedly won a reputation among the middle-aged as a codder of criminals.

But beyond that, Lindsay is now suffering from the cavalier treatment of the Republican party by his former political mastermind, Robert Price.

Price, who wielded immeasurable power in the Lindsay camp until his break with the Mayor two years ago, has no influence whatever for the Republican clubhouses, ignoring them during the campaign. Price after victory tried unsuccessfully to build a new Republican party in the Bronx, and shorthanded party leaders — with the Mayor's patronage.

Furthermore, building a broader Republican base here has been ignored throughout the Lindsay administration. Thus the Mayor finds himself with a Republican electorate more philosophically in tune with Barry Goldwater than John V. Lindsay's own amazement, analysis shows that less than 5 per cent of New York Republicans are under 25 and over 40 percent are older than 50.

Lindsay is belatedly mending his Republican fences, journeying to Queens to address veterans groups and asking staff members to cultivate district party leaders previously ignored by City Hall. With considerable justification, Lindsay argues to voters that his administration both modernized and enlarged the police department.

Even Lindsay's advisors admit it won't work. More to the political point is their computerized attempt to identify Lindsay voters among the city's widely scattered Republicans and then vote them — and nobody else — on June 16.

But Lindsay's most valuable asset is still in his pocket between State Sen. John V. Marchi, a respectable conservative, and state Assemblyman Vito Battista, a perennial gadfly candidate. Although anti-Lindsay party regulars are turning to Marchi, early surveys show Battista leading well ahead of Marchi and Price. Marchi's supporters are pleading for Battista's withdrawal, even suggesting that the legislature might carve out a new Congressional district for him.

Even with Battista's unintended help, however, the prima donna has decided to run. He has forced the Lindsay operation to spend the spring hunting down Republican voters among New York's multitudes of Democrats and holding hands with loyalist clubhouses Republicans who revel in their newfound status as City Hall's latest darlings. It is up to the Mayor himself, with New York's angry disillusioned voters at large, delayed just that much longer,

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Mumps Vaccine

It seems that there is some confusion about the new mumps vaccine. Perhaps we can clear it up.

First, the vaccine now is fully approved by the government having been tested at considerable length.

Who should get it? The intention is to give it to all children along with other immunizations.

At what age? After the age of one year.

What about adults? If they are sure they have not had mumps, they would be wise to have the vaccine — particularly if they are in the age group of 10 to 14 years old.

It matters, this particular Soviet project does not violate the U.S.-Russia treaty barring the exchange of vaccine, and it is not in evidence. The Russians are exempt from the ban because the warhead is carried less than one orbit, and there is no evidence the Russians were using nuclear warheads.

Of perhaps more significance is the fact that mumps is not endemic in the western states.

On October 10, 1967, the Pentagon chose officially to verify the identification, it will at least put an end to speculation that the "flying Saucers" are vessels carrying visitors from Mars.

And why not until such an age instead of giving the vaccine to all children? Because mumps at any age can be pretty uncomfortable, and like other "childhood" diseases, it can and can cause encephalitis (brain infection) and other complications.

Are there any side effects or unpleasant reactions from the vaccine? There can be side effects with virtually any vaccine, but these are exceptions. In the first one million mumps vaccinations, no significant side effects were observed, which is a pretty sound indication of safety.

How long does immunity last? It is not yet known, but blood tests show that immunity is good for at least a year.

Suppose you aren't sure whether you've had mumps? There is a simple skin test which will answer that. Some people have had very mild cases and didn't realize it, then acquired the disease. So, if you have the vaccine, you can be sure.

Safeguard ABM System Expects To Pass House

By DANIEL RAPORT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's Safeguard ABM system is expected to breeze through the House, with leaders of both parties giving it their full support in marked contrast to the opposition mounted against it by key Democrats in the Senate.

There are, to be sure, many ABM critics in the House. But they acknowledge privately the controversial antiballistic missile program cannot be defeated in the House so long as both Republican and Democratic leaders stand firmly behind it.

The events of last July point up, as nothing else can, how effective Democratic leaders can influence party policy.

On the afternoon of July 11,

Chairmen Appointed By Area Chamber

Rockefeller Confers With Mexico Aides

By J. PAUL WYATT

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller conferred today with Mexican foreign trade officials in what government sources said would produce a series of complaints about U.S. trade relations.

Rockefeller arrived in Mexico Sunday from a Latin American fact-finding tour that will take him to practically every Latin American nation except Cuba on behalf of President Nixon.

Rockefeller spent an hour with President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz and a joint statement said Diaz Ordaz insisted Mexico be given favorable treatment in U.S. trade relations.

Reports from other Latin American nations Rockefeller will visit indicated they "now" would demand better deals in selling their products in the United States.

The New York governor was meeting today with the National Foreign Trade Council which includes six cabinet members.

The meeting with Diaz Ordaz was the first session of a discussion that will be divided into four trips. Rockefeller will submit a report to President Nixon in July. The report is supposed to form the basis for "new policies" and "new concepts" in U.S. relations with Latin America, Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller and his group leave Tuesday for Guatemala via Mexico through El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama, returning home May 19.

Twelve States Favor Electing President By Direct Vote

By ROBERT J. TAYLOR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It appears the Safeguard system, apparently recognizing that it will need some of New York City's big liberal vote for re-election in 1970.

Although ABM opponents concede they have lost the battle in the House, they are encouraged by indications it will be the most closely fought Hillary Clinton election.

Both sides now estimate about 100 out of the 434 members will vote against Safeguard but the headcount has only just begun. The final figure might be considerably higher if the opposition forces pick-up more momentum.

Two Widows Honored On Mother's Day

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two mothers of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. were honored at a Mother's Day church service Sunday.

Mrs. Medgar Evers, whose husband was killed by a sniper's bullet in Mississippi, and Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., whose husband was killed during a bank robbery on the day of the funeral of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., attended the special service at St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

Both women were recognized as "leaders of the Civil Rights movement in our day in America."

At the end of the service, San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto presented them a "key to the city."

The meeting was the first session of a discussion that will be divided into four trips. Rockefeller will submit a report to President Nixon in July. The report is supposed to form the basis for "new policies" and "new concepts" in U.S. relations with Latin America, Rockefeller said.

William Ratchford, speaker of the Connecticut House, said "The Electoral College has long outlived its usefulness. The time is right." That sentiment was reflected in nearly every state.

"In those states where opposition to direct presidential election include Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Nebraska, Arizona, Utah, States where opposition is substantial but not as strong include Minnesota, Ohio and Pennsylvania."

The plan is given the edge in Maryland, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, Kansas, Kentucky, Colorado, Hawaii, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Texas.

315 Million Jobs To-Open Each Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 315 million jobs will open each year through the mid-1970's despite increasing automation and the gradual disappearance of some "obsolete" occupations, the Labor Department predicted Sunday.

The long-range forecast, keyed to the economic outlook and the natural retirement of older workers, noted there would be continued need for persons working in heavily automated fields, such as telephone operators and typists, accountants and auditors, and secretaries. The Department estimated, for example, that there would be 600 job openings annually for blacksmiths.

Farm Wives Hear Ex-Convict Stress Value Of Home Life

An ex-convict laid it on the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation line for the Idaho Farm Bureau Women here Friday and the very proper farm ladies took it to heart.

If there is any solution to the problem of steadily rising crime in the United States, it has to start in the home.

This was the message presented by Larry Wells, Thornton, at a state "Golden Year" meeting at the Rogerson Hotel.

"If you do not have love and understanding between husband and wife, you can't expect to pass it on to your children," Mr. Wells noted as he addressed the group of 100 women from throughout Idaho.

Mrs. Thomas spoke on the community pesticide program for the state and showed colored slides pointing out carelessness of most farmers in spraying and the misuse of pesticides.

Mrs. Thomas used "Living with the Times and Age" as her topic, emphasizing the importance of the woman's role in today's society. Mr. Hayes pointed out the importance of women in the Farm Bureau program, noting "If you want a job done right and done now, give it to a woman." Mrs. Thomas spoke of the problems agricultural people are facing, specifically in the field of farm labor, and incorporated James J. Kilpatrick's recent article on the grape boycott, using several quotes from the famed writer.

John K. Angerhofer, a member of the Twin Falls City Commission, was on hand at the morning session to welcome the ladies to Twin Falls and explain farming activities in Magic Valley.

The invocation was given by Eva Hines, Farm Bureau treasurer, and the flag ceremony by Alice Hine of District No. 4. A special tribute to the unit's Golden Anniversary, "I Am an American," was given by Mrs. Clyde Vanbuskirk.

During the afternoon session, a skit was presented under the direction of Georgia Dixon, Bonneville County, and special greetings were given by Mrs. Albert Wilson, regional director.

Other special guests attending the session were various organizations Idaho's first lady, Mrs. Ruby Samuelson, and Mrs. Pete

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 45-year-old divorced woman with a married man whom he visited my city (twice a month) on business.

Well, all of a sudden his conscience started to bother him so this dirty rat told his wife everything — in detail. He even turned over to his wife all the letters I had written to him, and she sent them to MY mother along with a complete list of hospitals and states I met him in his room.

He tells me that he knows to relieve his wife of all the anguish she has suffered because of me, and now he wants to make it up to her and stay over again with a clean slate.

What about me? I bought him an expensive watch, which his wife soaked in salt water, and returned to me — ruined!

Is there any way I can get back at him legally? I have letters from him, too.

BITTER

DEAR BITTER: If I were you, I'd quit losers.

DEAR ABBY: My son got a girl in trouble and they got married. Now they're having a wonderful life but they both love. They love each other, too, and are very happy together. The problem is my husband,

Hairdresser Uses Talents For Happiness Of Others

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Kay Koch, cover 22 institutions in the St. Louis area, and each place has proved that if you have to do help your fellowman is to be the scene of great satisfaction for the volunteers.

Mrs. Koch, a hairdresser at a chronic hospital, told her volunteer hairdresser, "they won't have to watch me the time I'm there. They don't want to know that I can look like this."

Girls at the Missouri School for the Blind will touch their new hairdos and say, "Oh, it's beautiful."

A teen-aged girl whose hair was coiffed at a children's center will in due time state that she's come month later to tell her hairdresser, "I'm here now because I set fire to all the beds. Nobody but you cares about me anyway."

"When you look into the mirror after you've finished, sometimes they have a big broad smile that seems to go deep down inside of you."

The beauty aides used by Mrs. Koch and her helpers are donated by J. St. Louis Supply Co. and the hairdressers are counted with many working a 10-hour day at a hospital or an old folks' home each week.

Mrs. Koch said, "I've been going to the mental hospital for 12 years and I've got regulars on there. They'll see me coming and say, 'We've been waiting for you, Koch.'"

"So many of them are grumpy at first," she said. "But when they change their attitude, after you've worked with them. And when one is released from the mental hospital, they'll call. You've done a lot to help." One woman even went on and got her state license as a hairdresser."

Mrs. Koch and her aides have been going to the mental hospital for 12 years and I've got regulars on there. They'll see me coming and say, "We've been waiting for you, Koch."

Today's Market And Financial Report

Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue chips were under considerable pressure Monday in what was otherwise an orderly stock market day. Trading was moderately active.

Shortly before 1 p.m., the UPI stock market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, was off 0.82 per cent on 1,541 issues on the tape. Of these, 770 declined and 302 advanced.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which reflects movement in the blue chips, dropped 4.01 to 956.70, rising last week to its best level of the year.

Volume approximated eight-

Stunned Baltimore Fans Claim Team Was Shifted Only Because Of Profit

NEW YORK (UPI) — The football establishment — from the owners on down to the officials and the players — were trumpeting the virtues of the game's realignment Sunday but many of the National Football League fans who buy the tickets were shocked and unhappy over the move.

The fans in Baltimore and Cleveland, the two teams who met for the NFL crown, were stunned by the 13-team American Conference in the new setup. The Pittsburgh fans, who have never had a winner in the NFL, took the news a bit more calmly.

The competition of the three divisions of the remaining 11 teams in the NFL, the Browns, the Jets, and the Steelers, was undecided at the matinee 3½-hour meeting. The owners will reconvene in June to decide that.

Cleveland fans, who were led to believe that owner Art Modell was a staunch opponent of the Browns' move, were stunned by the move. Modell said he had very little to do with the move and says the fans will support it but the first reaction wasn't too favorable.

Albert F. Kardos of Euclid, who's missed only two Browns games since 1948, said: "I think they made a mistake. I don't know why they didn't pick somebody else instead of us. I think it's just dumb."

Charles D. Robinson of Euclid said: "It's degrading, they're putting the Browns in a league that is just starting and competitively it's no good. The Browns are going to win more games, but it'll be like the Indians, playing a farm team."

Bob Dunn, the sports editor of the Plain Dealer, said: "My first reaction is that I don't like it. It's a real kick and hard for me to believe. It's hard to take such a move, when the Browns had such a strong and successful franchise in the NFL."

Sam of Mentor commented: "Now could they take away the two teams who played in the NFL title game last year. The Browns are now sure to be division champions every year but the regular season will be meaningless. After teams try to shuffle around teams that just take three away."

In Baltimore, which probably has the most fanatic fans in the NFL, the main reaction seemed to be speculation that owner Carroll Rosenblum will not be getting his money involved. There was speculation that each of the three teams that moved received compensation in excess of $2 million.

Richard Wagner said: "I think Rosenblum did it for the money. It's the same in all pro sports, the owners are taking the suckers for all they can get."

One newspaperman, who wanted to remain nameless, said, "The Blankety-blank Colts and that Blankety-blank Rosenblum did it for the money."

One compensation for the Colins was that they are now in the same division with the Jets, who upset the Colts in the Super Bowl. The club will now meet twice a year and the Colts fans figure that after 1970, Joe Namath will never make it to another Super Bowl.

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Jim Hunter scattered three hits and retired 10 of the last 17 men faced Sunday to lead Oakland to a 2-0 victory over the faltering New York Yankees and move the Athletics into a virtual first-place tie in the American League West.

Hunter allowed only one runner as fast as third and two to second. When he upped his velocity to 92 miles per hour, he was credited with a run-producing grounder and advancing another runner into scoring position as the A's won their sixth in a row and tenth in 11 games.

Oakland now has a 38-10 record for a .533 compared to Minnesota's 18-16 mark and .507. New York is 34-19 (.600) and Los Angeles at Pittsburgh is 34-19 (.500).

MINI-DOME'S FIRST ARCH goes up at Idaho State University. The structure, first of its kind as far as collegiate football stadiums go, is scheduled to be completed in time for the Nov. 22 ISU battle with Drake University.

First Arch Goes Up On ISU Mini-Dome

POCATELLO (UPI) — The first arch for the Idaho State University covered football and sports arena was moved into place Friday in an operation which dramatically covered the stadium in the United States.

"People now realize it's going to be a reality," said Milton "Dubby" Holt, ISU director of athletics. "Barring strikes or other difficulties it will be ready by November 23-24 for football game with Drake University of Des Moines, Iowa."

Although it is nicknamed the "Mini-Dome," the structure will be 100 feet higher than the dome will be 400 ft. 420 feet with a seating capacity of 14,000. From floor level to the top of the arches is 103 feet. The top of the arches is 84 feet above ground level outside.

Mitchell Construction Company is handling the design, the main arena work and Allen Steel Company of Salt Lake City is handling the steel work. The "Mini-Dome" will house a football field with artificial turf, a portable track and basketball court, a movable grandstand and a platform for other facilities.

"It will give the athletic program a tremendous boost," said Holt. "We're thrilled to see the beams going up."

Holt believes the "Mini-Dome" is progressing "fairly close" to schedule.

The idea for the ISU covered arena developed from a

Beman Wins Texas Open After Watching McGowan Blow Easy 18-Inch Putt

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Sam Beman, getting into a sudden death playoff when Jack McGowan missed a 16-inch putt, but still appeared to be a long shot, won the $100,000-plus, 18-hole, first-round, 20-foot putt, on the first playoff hole Sunday to win the $100,000 Texas Open—his first PGA tour title.

Holtzman And Cubs Blank Giants 8-0

CHICAGO (UPI) — Billy Williams hit a two-run home in the first inning, Randy Hundley drove in three runs with a homer and a single, and Ron Santo singled in two runs Sunday as the Chicago Cubs blanked the San Francisco Giants 8-0 behind the nine-hitter pitching of Ken Holtzman.

Williams rocked laser Ray Sadecki with a one-run blast in the first inning and Hundley added a solo homer in the second. Sadecki only allowed one more run in his six-inning stint, but the Cubs added four runs in the seventh against reliever Ron Herbel.

Holtzman, who was aided by a double play, was hit with a pitch his way out of several jams while recording his fifth victory of the season against one loss, struck out 10 to his career high.

San Francisco 500,000-0-0. Don Newcombe (7) and Hiltz (1), Bill Williams (3rd), Hundley (6).

Preakness Choices Post Good Times

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The two leading candidates for Saturday's $100,000-added Preakness Stakes at Pimlico—unbeaten Majestic Prince and Top Knight—both turned fine workouts Sunday.

Raymond Metcalf, who trains Top Knight, was all smiles after the 3-year-old son of Vertex worked out in 1:38 and galloped out an additional eighth in 1:52.

Johnny Longden, the former riding great who trained Majestic Prince, was equally pleased with the Kentucky Derby winner's seven-furlong work in 1:26.

"Just perfect," Metcalf said. "It's a very nice move over this track. I'm pleased. We don't plan to do anything more with him, except blow him out for the race on Thursday."

Longden, who also exercises Majestic Prince, noted "I went very easily, as usual." I probably would do something with him now, but blow him out Thursday or Friday."

Both horses worked very willingly and both returned to the barn in playful mood—a sign of good horses in top condition.

Both horses were on the track shortly after daylight began to make its way into the arena. At 6:00 a.m. sharp, Top Knight, with exercise boy Johnny Wier up, came onto the track with a pony at his side.

Top Knight was his usual calm self. Just four minutes later Majestic Prince, also accompanied by a pony, showed his appearance at the gap. He, too, had his mind on his business.

BIDS, PLAY RANK SUPER-SILLIES

Jim: "Here is a hand from the qualifying session of the Open Pairs in Cleveland that may well be recorded as the silliest hand of all time."

Oswald: "It will have to go some to beat many of the hands I've seen. I went back and forth on the 42 years contract has been played. Let's see it."

Jim: "North and South were having a bad session and South was rather annoyed with the whole thing. We don't know whether he opened one more hand or not. Jim: 'Anyways—Ay—ay—he bid it and North responded two spades, which was a minor-suit transfer bid; South rebid three clubs and then tried three hearts over his partner's three-diamond call. I don't understand North's three-spade bid but South decided that it might be showing spades. Hence his bids of four and five spades. Eventually North went to six-no-trump and with East and West playing some form of give-away, they brought that contract home."

Oswald: "Let's see if I can work it out. West starts with the lead of his fourth best spade. South wins in dummy and takes a club for a finesse. He continues until left with one in his hand: West leads one spade and one heart."

Jim: "That's close. Actually South held the third club in dummy and finessed his Jack of hearts. Then he led his singleton diamond and played dummy's jack. East ducked and South played a second heart to his partner. Then he led the king of spades. West took the ace and continued that suit. Now South cashed his hearts. West discarded another spade on the last heart and South's spades were all good."

Oswald: "You are right. The combination of bidding and play makes this the silliest hand of this year, if not of all time."

Mussolini's Widow Will Get Pension

ROME (UPI)—A court ruled today that Rachele Mussolini, widow of fascist dictator Benito Mussolini, is entitled to a $227.20 monthly pension dating back to 1961.

A decision by the Court of Accounts has apparently settled years of legal and diplomatic maneuvering over the battle by Mrs. Mussolini, 78, to obtain a pension. The decision, published today, said Mrs. Mussolini's pension should be retroactive to 1961, the year she began her legal fight.

Until nearly 12 months ago, the government contended she was entitled to no pension because Mrs. Mussolini waited more than 10 years after her husband's death to file a claim. But a high court ruled the law did not apply to pension cases.

West Germany Begins Sending Back Money Spent On Marks

By JOHN A. CALCOTT

BASEL, Switzerland (UPI)—West Germany today began sending back to the nations that lost it more than $4 billion foreign speculators spent buying German marks in a crisis that threatened the international monetary system.

Two western bank managers agreed to buy back the billions that had flowed into West Germany and said they were confident they would put the dampener on the wave of speculation on the mark.

Europe's hottest currency, the western bankers decided in a secret meeting to take that route, to try to control speculation on the mark after Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger assured them Germany would not revalue.

The government bankers had been faced with coming up with a way to halt the soaring demand for German marks that began when General Charles de Gaulle resigned. It had driven down the value of the franc and pushed up the mark's value accordingly.

Financial sources estimated speculators had sold $4 billion in francs, British pounds and other currencies to get marks since they hoped West Germany would yield to international pressure to revalue the mark upward.

Those with marks would have been left with a windfall profit. The western bankers took that route, to move the speculative money back out of Germany was issued at the end of a 5½ hour meeting, the longest meeting western bankers had ever held. The central bank includes all major West European industrial nations along with the United States, Canada and Japan.

What the decision means is that Germany will send back the speculator's money and in exchange accept money from the nations which suffered in the crisis.

Karl Blessing, head of the West German Federal Bank, admitted it would be difficult to determine what countries lost money and how much in speculation over the mark upward.

Those with marks would have been left with a windfall profit.

The communiqué announcing the decision to move the speculative money back out of Germany was issued at the end of a 5½ hour meeting, the longest meeting western bankers had ever held. The central bank supports its currency.

Thus, if one country had to use up a certain amount of its reserves to buy back its own money to support its exchange rate, that amount of reserves would be used in determining how much money should be sent back from Germany.
